

09. What are the chances of developing a second lung cancer?

A person who has had lung cancer once is more likely to develop a second lung cancer compared to a person who has never had lung cancer. Quitting smoking after lung cancer is diagnosed may prevent the development of a second lung cancer.