CORPORATE PROFILE

As the premier anti-cancer institution in the country, the Philippine Cancer Society, Inc. (PCSI) has endeavored to serve Filipinos in the fight against cancer – “to advance knowledge on cancer, control the spread of the disease and bring relief to those afflicted.”

Since 1956, the PCSI focuses its efforts towards three primary advocacies – prevention and early detection, statistical research and focused patient services. Free film showings and lectures are provided to communities, workplaces, schools and companies to raise cancer awareness about cancer. Other integral projects of its education and information work is publicity and advertising, online and social media, special events and printed collaterals.

Relentless in its campaign on tobacco control, the Society has advocated for a 100% smoke-free environment nationwide. The PCS advocates for the full implementation of the provisions under the Framework Convention on Tobacco Control.

Other advocacies towards cancer prevention which the PCS has strongly supported are Hepatitis-B infant vaccination for liver cancer control, expanded coverage in PhilHealth benefits packages for cancer diseases and non-communicable diseases prevention and control through healthy lifestyle.

The PCSI Cancer Registry, and the Department of Health’s Rizal Cancer Registry (DOH-RCR), are the only sources of internationally-validated cancer incidence, mortality and survival statistics in the country. Among the oldest in Asia, these registries provide baseline data that help policy decision-makers strategize efforts against cancer. Statistics derived from the PCSI registry and DOH-RCR are published in series by the Society, entitled “Cancer Facts and Estimates” and “Cancer in the Philippines” and by the International Association of Cancer Registries (IACR) for “Cancer Incidence in Five Continents.”

Volunteer doctors offer first line consultations and referrals for patients needing further medical attention like mammography. These referrals are PCS partners for diagnostic services, pain and symptom management and hospice services.

The Society undertakes its Patient Navigation Program (PNaP) that directly assist cancer patients with their treatment procedures while eliminating other psychosocial barriers in the country’s complicated healthcare system. With this Program, early-staged cancers of Filipino patients, particularly those that belong to the impoverished sector of society, are now given excellent opportunities for survival. Hospice services and palliative care are also available to cancer patients who do not respond anymore to cancer treatment.
MESSAGE

Our 2015 Annual Report describes the activities of the Philippine Cancer Society. It would appear that we have continued to fulfill our declared mission to spread useful knowledge about cancer among our people and to advocate for measures contributing to the fight against it. And our efforts to provide cancer victims, especially among the underprivileged, with direct free assistance for diagnostic procedures, treatment and medicine including the provision of chemotherapy have been reaching more and more of our people every year.

We thank the organizations, both government and private, both national and local, who have recognized what the PCS has done and can do as they continue to consult and entrust to us important responsibilities in the campaign against cancer. We thank particularly the Department of Health (DOH) for trusting us to carry out its major programs against breast cancer and continue our long-standing work at developing reliable cancer statistics.

We thank our members and donors. We thank special civic groups like the untiring and generous volunteers who have raised funds for our projects like the Best Dressed Women of the Philippines and Relay for Life events. Without them, the PCS cannot continue to exist and do its noble work.

We thank the volunteer physicians, health workers and the PCS staff, led by our Executive Director, who have carried out our programs and implemented them with rare dedication.

Finally, I thank my fellow volunteer Trustees who have so generously given their experience, time and expertise to guide PCS in this invaluable commitment to serve the Filipino people.

ROBERTO M. PATERNO, Ph.D.
Chairman of the Board
MESSAGE

In December, sixty years ago, a determined group of prominent businessmen and medical specialists incorporated themselves to establish the Philippine Cancer Society. The original articles of incorporation of the PCS focused on a mission that we have institutionalized until today: cancer research, education and information, and patient services.

For three scores, the PCS has grown into the leading and pioneering private organization in cancer prevention and control. The Society was the forerunner in:

- The first Cancer Diagnostic and Treatment Center;
- Population-based Cancer Registry;
- Anti-smoking campaigns;
- Hospice and Palliative Care;
- Patient Navigation Program, and;
- Mobile Cancer Clinic.

These unprecedented achievements shall continue to be the hallmarks of our organization. We shall endeavour to find ways and mean, with help and support of our partners and sponsors, to ease the burden of cancer among the Filipino populace.

There is still much work to be done particularly in instilling in our people the value of a healthy lifestyle as a preventive measure for cancer and other non-communicable diseases (NCDs).

On the pages of this Annual Report are the PCS’ activities in 2015 – a fitting memento to 60 years of charitable health and wellness services – that we aspire to endure until the cancer challenge has cease to ravage our countrymen.

CORAZON A. NGELANGEL, M.D.
President
MESSAGE

Greetings!

We started our work in 2015 aware of the challenges and, more importantly, of the opportunities facing the Philippine Cancer Society (PCS) as we enter our 60th year of service to the Filipino people and to the country.

Highlighting our work last year was the launching and operationalization of the Mobile Clinic Bus which offers Acetic Acid Wash for Cervical Cancer with cryotherapy services and Clinical Breast Examination (CBE).

The refurbished and renovated Bus, including maintenance and operations, was made possible through the Best Dressed Women of the Philippines (BDWP) and Victory Liner. It is the fruition of our efforts to present to local government units the significance and value of our advocacy that “cancer can be prevented and treated successfully if detected early.” These two screening procedures are the primary activities recommended by the World Health Organization (WHO) in its Package of Essential Interventions for Primary Health Care, particularly cancer.

Another milestone program of the PCS is the development of two essential software applications for medical oncologists and health workers - the Philippine Clinical Oncology Electronic Medical Records System (PhCOeMRs) and the Philippine Electronic Cancer Screen Registry (eCancerScreenRegistry). These two registries are intended to supplement the already existing PCS Manila Cancer Registry which would produce efficient and fast retrieval of patients’ medical records and provide baseline data for cancer control programs.

Other important PCS programs and activities that mirror our events in 2015 are included in this Annual Report.

Chairman of the Board,
President and Executive Director are ex-officio members of all Committees.
The Philippine Cancer Society ventured into another pioneering project with the launching of its Mobile Clinic that offers Acetic Acid Wash (AAW) with Cryotherapy treatment and Clinical Breast Examination (CBE).

The CBE and AAW are the primary early screening procedures for breast cancer and cervical cancer, respectively, recommended by the World Health Organization (WHO) for low-resourced settings like the Philippines.

Patients that undergo CBE with positive findings are further evaluated at the PCS Clinic or enrolled under the Society’s Patient Navigation Program (PNaP). Likewise, pre-cancerous lesions found during AAW are treated with cryotherapy to complete the Single Visit Approach. Positive findings for cervical cancer are also referred to the PCS’ PNaP.

The Mobile Clinic was made possible through the generous efforts of Victory Liner and the Best Dressed Women of the Philippines (BDWP) which also provides for the operations and maintenance of the Clinic.
The Patient Navigation Program is a pioneering project of the Society introduced in 2010 which aims to provide individualized assistance to poor Filipinos so that they may have access to timely, affordable and, quality diagnosis and treatment.

Starting out with four pilot hospitals, the PNaP program is now being implemented in six government hospitals, namely: the UP-Philippine General Hospital, the Jose Reyes Memorial Medical Center, both in Manila; East Avenue Medical Center in Quezon City; Rizal Medical Center in Pasig City, the Bicol Regional Teaching and Training Hospital in Legazpi City, and; Southern Philippines Medical Center in Davao City.

The PNaP program administers the Department of Health’s Breast Cancer Medicine Access Program (DOH-BCMAP) in the public hospitals while the PCS Patient Services Unit handles all other indigent cancer patients.

In 2015, the PCS’ Patient Services has enrolled 1,085 cancer patients with 879 under the DOH-BCMAP.

Patient Services of the PCS includes the Patient Navigation Program (see adjacent article), the Consultation and Referral Clinic, Mobile Cancer Screening, Hospice and Palliative Care for terminally-ill cancer patients, special events and the new Mobile Clinic, which has screened 764 patients from August to December 2015.

The Clinic is open twice a week for walk-ins and referral patients while the Mobile Cancer Screening goes to communities, schools and workplaces for clinical breast examination and pap smear. Suspicious findings are further evaluated, treated and referred to partner hospitals as the need arises.

Cancer patients were also assisted for hospice and palliative care.
The primary advocacy of the Philippine Cancer Society has focused on the premise that “cancer can be prevented and cured successfully, if detected early.” Programs, projects and activities are then designed to prioritize cancer sites that are preventable (cancers associated with smoking, liver and cervical cancers) and easily treated when diagnosed at an early stage (breast, cervix, colorectal, thyroid, prostate, etc.). Partnerships and linkages with major agencies and institutions enhance and strengthen the Society’s advocacy program as shown in these photos.

Hospice and palliative care, a program introduced by the Society in the early 1990s, took a front seat in 2015 with marathon sessions in Congress for the bill on hospice and palliative care. This led the Department of Health to issue a National Policy on Palliative and Hospice Care in the Philippines through DAO 2015-0052.

The Joint Program for pediatric hospices and palliative care is a collaborative activity of PCS, the Lung Center of the Philippines and SM Foundation. Above shows the 9th Annual Post-Graduate Course with Dr. Rachael Rosario as speaker on the topic, “Palliative Care: What Can it Offer?”
The PCS was all over media in 2015 with several print media articles, TV and radio guestings and phone patch interviews. The intensified publicity campaign has long established PCS as the hub of reliable and timely general cancer information in the country.

Media networks invite members of PCS’ Speakers Bureau for guesting in major health and wellness programs that provide vital and life-saving information on cancer and the promotion of a healthy lifestyle.

Significant in 2015 was the twice a week “advertorials” on cancer information that PCS provided the daily newspaper The Philippine Star through the support of AXA Philippines.

The PCS also maintains cancer information through its website at www.philcancer.org.ph and its Facebook, Twitter and Instagram accounts.
Among the major education and information efforts of the PCS in 2015 were the Symposia and Lay Forums in cooperation with stakeholders in the anti-cancer movement. In photo are physicians from UP-PGH’s Department of Family and Community Medicine during a Bioethics Symposium.

Partnership with AVON

A global advocacy of cosmetics giant AVON in 2015 was “Kiss Goodbye to Breast Cancer” of which the Society was a major partner. Simultaneous lectures were held in various venues with PCS Speakers Bureau as guest speakers. The PCS was also a major participant during Avon’s Walk and Run Against Breast Cancer held at the MOA in October, and; Avon’s Pink Day in celebration of Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

MANILA CANCER REGISTRY

IACR, NCI-USA top officials visit PCS

The PCS-Manila Cancer Registry is a population-based cancer registry that covers the cities of Manila, Caloocan, Pasay and Quezon City. It works closely with the Department of Health’s Rizal Cancer Registry in collaborative efforts for baseline data on incidence and mortality of cancer cases.

The areas covered by PCS-MCR and DOH-RCR are used for the publication of the Philippine Cancer Facts and Estimates every five years. This manual is the country’s basis for the Philippine burden on cancer. The next issue (2015 edition) is expected to be released by 2016.

These registries also submit data to the World Health Organization’s International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) for inclusion in the publication “Cancer Incidence in Five Continents” after passing stringent standards on quality and validity.

This international effort, in collaboration with the International Association of Cancer Registries (IACR) presents its information based on 12 million cancer cases from 300 population areas in 60 countries around the world that represents about 11% of the total global population.

Patrons of Health

As a non-stock, non profit organization, the PCS primarily relies on donations and contributions from charitable companies, individuals and fund-raising events to support its programs and projects in cancer prevention and control.

The main sources of financial logistics come from traditional solicitation of the country’s top 1000 corporations, the Relay for Life events and the Best Dressed Women of the Philippines.

Licensed by the Department of Social Welfare and Development, recognized by the Department of Health and the Department of Science and Technology, the PCS is registered as a Donee Institution by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.
